When President Donald Trump said during the 2016 presidential campaign that he was appointing a special counsel to investigate the probe of his campaign's ties to Russia, Democrats and establishment Republicans alike expressed outrage — a sign of what they called Trump's "constant abuse" of his executive authority. But in a July 9 interview with CBS' "60 Minutes," Trump was much more reserved, characterizing the situation as "a witch hunt." He said people "have to be careful because they're going to ruin people for life. Look what's happened to [former FBI] Director [James] Comey." That is so illegal!" July 8, 2016 On July 8, Comey told a Senate panel he had no intention of recommending charges against Clinton. "Had I believed she was guilty of a crime, I would have recommended that the Department of Justice prosecute that offense," he said. But, he added, "We did not come to a conclusion one way or the other." Trump calls that statement "disgraceful." He adds: "The FBI will never be able to erase the stigma of this horrible mistake." In a tweet on July 9, Trump says: "The FBI told Hillary Clinton's lawyers — finally — that they are dropping the case." July 9, 2016 In an interview with "60 Minutes," Trump says: "They put in this report. One of the reasons I think I got a
